Settled by the Gaels and disputed over centuries by the Vikings and Anglo-Normans, Dublin traces its history back more than 1,300 years. Today, you'll peel back some of the Irish capital's layers on a comprehensive tour, led by a local expert.

- Stop in Phoenix Park, the largest enclosed public park in any European capital city. First established as a royal hunting ground by government decree in 1662, this 1,750-acre greenspace today houses Áras an Uachtaráin—the presidential residence.
 - Pass by St. James's Gate Brewery, the legendary 260-year-old brewery behind Guinness dry stout. More than 50 million barrels ship out of the plant each year, making it the world's most prolific producer of stout-style beers.
 - Walk through Old Dublin, then step into St. Patrick's Cathedral, the country's largest church. Founded in 1191, it serves as the national cathedral for the Church of Ireland, and its arresting Gothic architecture befits a building of its stature.
 - Traverse Dublin's city center, passing 17th-century St. Stephen's Green as you go. Afterward, take some time to admire the Georgian architecture of Merrion Square. Another garden area in the heart of Dublin, it's been called home by some of Ireland's foremost writers—Oscar Wilde and W.B. Yeats among them.
 - See the dignified façade of Trinity College—Ireland's oldest university
- Fill your afternoon with an excursion out into

County Wicklow and pay a visit to gorgeous Glendalough, the well-preserved ruins of a once-influential abbey. Or, if you'd prefer some free time, head down to the shores of the River Liffey and breathe in the ambiance of the lively Temple Bar district.

(Please note: On some departures, the Dublin sightseeing tour and the Glendalough optional make take place on Day 4 and the St. Patrick's Day festival may occur on Day 3.)

County Cork → 1 night

Day 5: County Cork via Cobh

Included meals: breakfast, dinner

Make your way to Ireland's largest region: County Cork. Sprawling across 2,900 square miles of the country's southern reaches, it lays claim to a number of tourist attractions. Today, you'll visit one.

- From Dublin, head southwest to Cobh, a seaport town of roughly 14,000 on the other side of massive Cork Harbor. Here, you'll enter the Cobh Heritage Centre: Learn about Irish life, emigration, and maritime tradition over the centuries. (Did you know that Cobh was the Titanic's final port of call before its doomed maiden voyage?)

Later, chart a course for Cork—Ireland's second city, hugging both shores of the River Lee—and settle into your hotel. Enjoy some free time, then sit down with your group for an included dinner, served with beer or wine.

County Galway → 2 nights

Day 6: County Galway via Blarney Castle &

sightseeing tour of Galway

Included meals: breakfast

Now one of Ireland's most famous tourist sites, Blarney Castle was first built in 1210, then rebuilt in 1446 as a stronghold of the local MacCarthy of Muskerry dynasty. Today, you'll set out into the Irish countryside and visit this famed fortress, completing a popular quest in the process: planting a peck on the Blarney Stone. Originally added as a defensive structure, this slab of limestone supposedly grants all who kiss it "the gift of gab." Stretch out over the parapet and give it a smooch—then let us know how you feel!

Later, arrive in Galway, then let your Tour Director take the lead on a walking tour of the city's highlights.

- Stroll past a trio of Galwegian icons: Lynch's Castle, a castle-turned-bank that dates to the 16th century; the rustic home of "Ireland's most prestigious theatre (troupe)," the Druid Theatre Company; and John F. Kennedy Memorial Park, a popular greenspace better known to locals (and the world) as Eyre Square.
- Get a grasp of Galway's Norman history by viewing its medieval walls—12th-century fortifications that once encircled the city—and the Spanish Arch. First erected in 1584 as an extension of Galway's protective walls, its name alludes to the Spaniards who moored their ships and lived in the area.
- Peruse authentic Claddagh (said "CLA-da") rings in a local shop. Steeped in legend and symbolism, these pieces of jewelry have been produced in their current guise—two hands clasping a crowned heart—since at least 1700 and are inextricably linked to Galway.

Day 7: The Burren & Cliffs of Moher

Included meals: breakfast, farewell dinner

Journey outside the city to explore two of the country's most dramatic landscapes.

- Redefine "taking the scenic route" with a quick detour into County Clare and a walk along the mesmerizing Cliffs of Moher. (Sheer crags stretching into the distance, crashing waves below—you know this one!)
- Drive on through the Burren. Distinct from the lush greens that typify the rest of the Irish landscape, greys dominate this limestone plateau, punctuated by bursts of wildflowers. Botanists will surely delight in this journey: More than 70% of Ireland's flower species grow here.

Later, head to a traditional pub with live entertainment in Galway to celebrate your trip with your group during a farewell dinner.

Included meals: breakfast

Few places have influenced world history like London has: This city of roughly 8.8 million people boasts close to 2,000 years of history and four UNESCO World Heritage Sites; serves as a global financial hub; and is the most-visited place in all of Europe. Today, you'll explore the landmarks of England's cosmopolitan capital on a guided sightseeing tour.

- Pass grand Trafalgar Square—named in honor of the Royal Navy's decisive triumph over Napoleon Bonaparte's fleet—and Baroque St. Paul's Cathedral. Perched atop Ludgate Hill, at the highest point in London's historic center, this Anglican church is recognizable by its soaring dome.

- See Westminster Abbey, the Gothic church that has hosted 40 coronations and 16 royal weddings since 1066. A further 18 English, Scottish, and British monarchs were laid to rest within, further cementing Westminster's place in London lore.
- Spot the Elizabeth Tower (the Palace of Westminster's clock tower, better known as Big Ben); the 440-foot-tall London Eye observation wheel; Tower Bridge, with its stone handiwork and turquoise accents; and the notorious Tower of London.
- Stop by Buckingham Palace, the official residence and administrative headquarters of King Charles III. If you're lucky, you might catch the Changing of the Guard.

Bask in a getaway of royal proportions on this afternoon's excursion to Windsor Castle.

Alternatively, hang back and spend some free time in London. If you need a recommendation, the British Museum's millions of priceless antiquities are all just a half-hour's walk from Buckingham Palace.
