Food & Wine: Uruguay, Argentina & Chile

Pre-departure information for your tour

entry-requirements and searching the code TAC.

Cuisine

- Cuisine in Uruguay draws from European influences, but meat-based dishes are the most prevalent and popular. One must-try food is the chivito. This sandwich is one of Uruguay's national dishes and commonly includes filet mignon, olives, hard-boiled eggs, mozzarella, and tomatoes, all served on fresh-toasted bread.
- In Argentina, perhaps the most common dish is the asado, a series of salt-rubbed meats, ribs, and chorizo sausages cooked over a fire pit on metal grills and crosses. For dessert, try dulce de leche, a sweet honey-and-milk paste in pastries.
- With its lengthy Pacific coastline, it's no surprise that Chile is one of the world's seafood capitals. Ceviche, mussels with salsa verde, and seafood empanadas are all not to be missed.
- Uruguay, Argentina, and Chile all have their own wine-production traditions, but share some similarities in the varietals they produce. In Uruguay, family run wineries thrive outside of Montevideo in the Canelones wine region, which produces more than half of the country's wine. Popular varietals include cabernet sauvignon, merlot, and chardonnay. Argentina has been making wine since the 1500s and is one of the world's largest wine producers. Most of the country's wine comes from the Mendoza region where malbec has gained recent local and international popularity. Chile's proximity to the mountains, desert, and coast provides a variety of climates that help the grapes thrive. In addition, French colonization led to the cultivation of carménère and sauvignon blanc grapes in many areas including the Aconcagua and Casablanca regions.
- On the tour extension, Peruvian cuisine reflects both the country's indigenous cultures as well as European colonial and Pacific Rim influences. Staples include grains such as quinoa, maize, and rice, as well as beans, potatoes, and meat. Ceviche, traditionally raw sea bass marinated with lime and chilies, is a national dish.

Adventurous eaters may want to try cuy, or roasted guinea pig that's cooked over an open fire. You can also raise a toast with Peru's famous pisco, the delicious (and sour) white-grape brandy.

Electricity & air conditioning

- Uruguay and Argentina operate on 220 volts and use Types C or I plugs with two round pins or three flat pins, respectively.
- Chile operates on 220 volts and uses Types C or L plugs with two round pins or three round pins, respectively.
- On the tour extension, Peru operates on 220 volts and uses Types A or C plugs with two flat pins or two round pins, respectively.
- We recommend packing a universal adapter, as well as a voltage converter if you plan on using your own hairdryer or other electrical device without a built-in converter.
- The strength of the air conditioning in South American hotels is often not as strong or as cool as what you might be used to in the U.S. or Canada. When air conditioning is available, it is usually regulated seasonally and controlled centrally by the hotel.
- Hotels may provide hairdryers, irons, and other small appliances, but these amenities cannot be guaranteed.

Connectivity

- Wi-Fi is available in most hotels, though some charges may apply.
- There is no Wi-Fi on any of the motor coaches.
- Please contact your mobile service provider for information on roaming charges.

Time zones

- Uruguay, Argentina, and mainland Chile are three hours behind Greenwich Mean Time (GMT) and two hours ahead of Eastern Time (ET). Uruguay and Chile stopped observing daylight saving time in 2015. Argentina currently does not observe daylight saving time, though the country decides on a year-by-year basis.
- On the tour extension, Peru is five hours behind GMT, the same as EST. Peru does not observe daylight saving time.

- From November through March, when it's noon in New York City, it's 2pm in Uruguay, Argentina, and Chile (and noon in Peru on the tour extension). From April through October, when it's noon in New York City, it's 1pm in Uruguay, Argentina, and Chile (and 11am in Peru on the tour extension).

Currency

- You will use the Uruguayan peso in Uruguay, the Argentine peso in Argentina, and the Chilean peso in Chile (plus the Peruvian sol in Peru on the tour extension).
- Better rates of exchange are usually available overseas, although it's worth ordering some currency from your local bank to use when you first arrive.
- We strongly advise that you take debit/bank cards and credit cards, which can be used to withdraw cash at local banks as needed.
- You can use most debit/credit cards at ATMs on the international networks Cirrus and Plus, but make sure to check with your home bank about withdrawal fees.
- Inform your bank and credit card company of your travel plans so that they won't confuse your international purchases for fraudulent charges.
- International banks and businesses primarily accept debit and credit cards that work with the EMV chip system. If you do not already have at least one debit or credit card with a chip in it, we strongly recommend requesting one from your bank prior to your tour.

Tipping

- At the conclusion of your tour, it's customary to offer your Tour Director and driver a gratuity in local currency. Please keep current exchange rates in mind.
- We recommend tipping the equivalent of $7USD to $10USD per person per day for your Tour Director and the equivalent of $3USD per person per day for your driver.
- If applicable, we also recommend the equivalent of $2USD per local guide.
- Tips can only be paid in cash.
